

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

Proclamation

WHEREAS, the need for post-secondary education is important for the future strength of our community and nation; and

WHEREAS, a college education is critical to helping our students and community bridge the education and economic gap; and

WHEREAS, educating our students, families and community about the college admission process is essential to helping students transition from high school to college; and

WHEREAS, the Greenville County College Fair provides the opportunity for students and parents to actively engage in the process by meeting with college representatives and attend workshops; and

WHEREAS, schools, colleges and universities, businesses, parents, teachers, students, organizations, and media will hereby demonstrate their commitment to Bridges to College Week by actively participating in higher education events; and

WHEREAS, the Greenville County College Fair will be held on September 26 & 27th at the Greenville Convention Center; and

WHEREAS, the community of Greenville, South Carolina further believes in committing its resources to encourage and help students cross the bridge to higher education.

NOW THEREFORE, I, Knox H. White, Mayor of the City of Greenville, South Carolina do hereby proclaim the week of September 26th - 30th as:

BRIDGES TO COLLEGE WEEK

in the City of Greenville and on behalf of city council encourage all citizens to participate in educational programs and activities, not only during Bridges to College Week, but all year long, to make a visible statement that we are strongly committed to helping all students bridging the education gap in Greenville, South Carolina.
